ANIMAL CONTROL COMMITTEE
OCTOBER 13, 2010

The Animal Control Committee of the Greene County Commission met on Wed., Oct. 13, 2010 in the Courthouse Annex Conference Room. Members attending were Lloyd Bowers, Robert Bird, Brenda Grogan, Margaret Greenway, Fred Malone, and Jan Kiker. Those members not present were Rennie Hopson and Anthony Sauceman.

Committee Chairman Jan Kiker welcomed new members Lloyd Bowers and Robert Bird. The first order of business was to elect a chairman. Bowers suggested leaving Kiker in as chairman and secretary. His motion carried unanimously.

Chairman Kiker then asked Eddie Key, Director of Animal Control, to give his quarterly report for July, August, and September 2010. He noted that during those three months the Animal Control Facility and its three full-time employees (including himself) answered 1,186 animal calls, conducted 33 dog-bite investigations, sent 11 animals to the state lab for rabies tests, with two skunks recorded as having rabies.

Of the 970 animals picked up by animal control officers, Key said 115 were rescued by various organizations seeking to find homes for them, and 809 were euthanized. The rest are still being held at the facility. Of those euthanized, he said 120 had health problems and 170 were aggressive, but 519 were considered adoptable. Key said many animals continue to be abandoned near the Greene-Hawkins county line and the Greene-Cocke County line, since neither of those counties do full-time animal control pick-ups.

Kiker said her highest concern continues to be the large number of pets that could be adopted but that are instead euthanized. Key said the problem with animal control as a county department is that it has no revenue source. He said the current animal control facility was intended to be twice as large as it is, but had to be reduced because of costs. He also said that in order to be able to control out-breaks of animal diseases at the facility, it should only be operated at 75 percent of its capacity most of the time, but, Key said, "we're over 100 percent every day." At some point, he said, an addition has to be considered, and if the volume of calls continues to increase, the county needs to either consider adding another officer or cutting services. Since he has been director, Key said, the call volume has increased by 1,000 over the course of a year, with the same staff. "You can't do it" indefinitely, he said. Asked for specific numbers, Key referred to his notebook and found that the office fielded 1,186 calls this quarter, compared with 649 calls in the first quarter of 2007.

Committee member Brenda Grogan asked how the county animal-control facility handles adoption. Key said if someone asks about adopting a dog or cat, the animal is transferred to the Humane Society of Greene County, which is nearby. He said that arrangement is the result of a contract set up by this committee years ago. The Humane Society allows animals to be adopted if they are first spayed or neutered, get rabies shots and have an identification

OCTOBER 13, 2010

The Animal Control Committee of the Greene County Commission met on Wed., Oct. 13, 2010 in the Courthouse Annex Conference Room. Members attending were Lloyd Bowers, Robert Bird, Brenda Grogan, Margaret Greenway, Fred Malone, and Jan Kiker. Those members not present were Rennie Hopson and Anthony Sauceman.

Committee Chairman Jan Kiker welcomed new members Lloyd Bowers and Robert Bird. The first order of business was to elect a chairman. Bowers suggested leaving Kiker in as chairman and secretary. His motion carried unanimously.

Chairman Kiker then asked Eddie Key, Director of Animal Control, to give his quarterly report for July, August, and September 2010. He noted that during those three months the Animal Control Facility and its three full-time employees (including himself) answered 1,186 animal calls, conducted 33 dog-bite investigations, sent 11 animals to the state lab for rabies tests, with two skunks recorded as having rabies.

Of the 970 animals picked up by animal control officers, Key said 115 were rescued by various organizations seeking to find homes for them, and 809 were euthanized. The rest are still being held at the facility. Of those euthanized, he said 120 had health problems and 170 were aggressive, but 519 were considered adoptable. Key said many animals continue to be abandoned near the Greene-Hawkins county line and the Greene-Cocke County line, since neither of those counties do full-time animal control pick-ups.

Kiker said her highest concern continues to be the large number of pets that could be adopted but that are instead euthanized. Key said the problem with animal control as a county department is that it has no revenue source. He said the current animal control facility was intended to be twice as large as it is, but had to be reduced because of costs. He also said that in order to be able to control out-breaks of animal diseases at the facility, it should only be operated at 75 percent of its capacity most of the time, but, Key said, "we're over 100 percent every day." At some point, he said, an addition has to be considered, and if the volume of calls continues to increase, the county needs to either consider adding another officer or cutting services. Since he has been director, Key said, the call volume has increased by 1,000 over the course of a year, with the same staff. "You can't do it" indefinitely, he said. Asked for specific numbers, Key referred to his notebook and found that the office fielded 1,186 calls this quarter, compared with 649 calls in the first quarter of 2007.

Committee member Brenda Grogan asked how the county animal-control facility handles adoption. Key said if someone asks about adopting a dog or cat, the animal is transferred to the Humane Society of Greene County, which is nearby. He said that arrangement is the result of a contract set up by this committee years ago. The Humane Society allows animals to be adopted if they are first spayed or neutered, get rabies shots and have an identification microchip implanted. This is all done for an $85 fee, which he said is much cheaper than taking the animal to a vet for the same services. He said state law says that animals that are adopted have to be spayed or neutered unless the person adopting them pays an additional $25 fee.

Key invited any committee member to spend a day or an afternoon or even an hour riding with one of his officers to get an idea of the workload. Kiker said she believes that Key "does the best he can with what he has to work with" in terms of facility and funding.

Grogan asked if any grant money is available. Key said he has applied for various grants and will continue to apply, but very little grant money is available.

Robin Quillen, who is a County Commissioner, said that Feral Friends is working with pharmaceutical companies seeking donations of supplies that would be used for reduced-cost spay-neuter clinics. She said she hopes to get some veterinarians to volunteer their time. "We hope to charge $10" for the procedure, she said.

There was no other discussion. The next meeting will be Jan. 12, 2011. The meeting was adjourned.
